15 MILES FROM STALINGRAD
—GERMAN CLAIM

RUSSIAN OFFENSIVES GATHERING WEIGHT

WHILE Russian guns are shelling the last German defences outside Rzhev, Berlin claims that the attackers have broken through Soviet defences south of Stalingrad and that German troops have only to cover 15 more miles to reach their prize.

North-west, west and south-west of the city, Moscow reports indicate that Russian armies have fought the Germans to a momentary standstill and in some sectors registered local gains.

In the Caucasus, while the German advance has been slowed, it is still making progress, and the Grozny oilfields and the Black Sea ports are gradually coming within the danger zone.—(Reuter.)

BATTLES IN RZHEV STREETS

LONDON, Monday.—Reuter's Correspondent on the Eastern front cables:—"The position at Rzhev is now, roughly, this—Zhukov's offensive has developed in two main thrusts north and south of the city. The Germans' one remaining railway for supplies from the west is under constant bombardment by long-range artillery and aircraft. The city is thus virtually surrounded. Red Army units are already battering their way into the northern outskirts, and tearing one street after another from the enemy's clutches.

"At Kletskaya, north-west of Stalingrad, Russian troops are still holding their positions, and have even made a slight advance in the last two days. Their resistance here is a continual threat to the German flank further south.

"At Kachalinsk, in the central sector, furious tank counter-attacks have smashed the spearhead of the German wedge, and have recovered some strategic heights. The drive has been momentarily halted.

"At Kotelnikovo, in the south-west, conflicting accounts make the position obscure. This is the sector in which the Germans claim a break through, but Soviet reports say that the German offensive is losing weight.

GERMAN REPORTS

LONDON, Monday. — To-day's German communiqué reports:—

"South of the Lower Kuban German and Rumanian troops have thrown back the enemy towards the Black Sea coast in a progressive attack. A.-A. artillery sank a Soviet gunboat.

"South of Stalingrad German troops broke through the enemy's positions, smashed strong Soviet forces, and now stand 15 miles south of the city.

"Night attacks by the Luftwaffe caused extensive fires in Stalingrad. In addition, railway targets and enemy aerodromes east of the Volga were attacked with good effect.

"Near Rzhev the enemy continued his attack with strong infantry and tank forces at several points. Forty-eight tanks were destroyed in hard battles, 38 by one stormgun detachment alone.

"South of Lake Ladoga new Soviet attacks failed. Italian M.T.B.'s, on the night of August 14, sank a Soviet gunboat and an enemy merchant ship on Lake Ladoga."

The German News Agency reported to-night that, following a successful break-through south of Stalingrad, German troops are now penetrating further Soviet strong points. Several Soviet counter-thrusts have been unsuccessful, it was added.

In the Kuban Axis forces, moving south below Krasnodar, are encountering stronger Soviet resistance, says German radio. Russian forces are making strong counter-attacks, and violent air battles are going on north of Novorossisk.—(Reuter.)

Russian attacks, with strong infantry, artillery, tank and air forces south-east of Lake Ilmen, are reported to-night by the German News Agency. The attacks—launched against the main German lines—made a break-through at one point, but were repelled in a counter-attack.

The sinking of a Soviet transport on Lake Ladoga, claimed by Rome to-day, was done by Italian motor torpedo boats, transported nearly 2,000 miles in twenty days by rail, road and sea from Italy, says the Italian News Agency. The boats, packed on special trailers, crossed the Brenner Pass to Germany, and proceeded to Finland under their own power.—(Reuter.)

SOVIET COMMUNIQUE

"During August 30," the supplement says, "units of our air force on various sectors destroyed or damaged about 20 German tanks and armoured cars and over 100 lorries with troops and war material. They also silenced five field A.-A. batteries, blew up two ammunition dumps and one fuel dump, wrecked three railway trains, and dispersed and partly annihilated about one battalion of enemy infantry.

"On the Kalinin front our troops captured three fortified places. The Germans lost 800 men killed and wounded. North-west of Stalingrad, Soviet troops fought fierce battles with a group which had infiltrated into Soviet positions. The Germans suffered enormous losses and tried to bring up reinforcements. One of the reinforcing columns was routed by the Red Army.

"In the area of Kletskaya our troops fought active operations and advanced. Italian troops defending this sector attempted to resist, but were overcome. 38 guns, 265 machine-guns, 1,500,000 rounds of ammunition, many lorries were captured and prisoners taken.

"North-east of Kotelnikovo our troops repelled enemy tanks and infantry attacks. In one sector the enemy drove a wedge into our positions. Resisting the enemy, our troops wiped out over 300 Germans and destroyed eight tanks. South of Krasnodar our troops repelled attacks. A group of German parachutists landed behind our lines, but was wiped out. Eighteen enemy 'planes were destroyed on this front. In the area of Prokhladnaya, more than 200 Germans were killed.—(Reuter.)

PROFITEERING IN BUTTER

That many shopkeepers sold all their butter at 2s. per lb.—3d. per lb. in excess of the controlled price—was the assertion of a blind member at a meeting of the Central Branch of the Labour Party. The speaker declared that retailers refused to sell him butter at 5½d. for a quarter-pound, but were quite prepared to sell it in two-ounce quantities for 3d. One shop would supply him with a quarter-pound of butter only if he also purchased milk and bread; another only if he bought sweets. This he could not afford to do; he went without butter.

This statement arose from discussion of a letter received by the branch from Miss Louie Bennett, Secretary of the Irish Women Workers' Union. The letter placed responsibility for butter shortage on the Government's refusal to ensure a higher milk price for farmers. The meeting unanimously passed a resolution calling on the Government "for the immediate rationing of butter."

ROMMEL STRIKES IN EGYPT

ATTACK ON BRITISH MAIN FRONT

MARSHAL ROMMEL is attacking in Egypt. Fighting is now in progress with German forces, including armour, which—breaking the month-old lull on the El Alamein front—pushed forward yesterday (Monday) morning against the British southern flank.

This news was given shortly after midnight in a British War Office announcement, quoted by the Press Association, which said it was not yet certain whether the Axis offensive is on a major scale.

Attacking with the first waning of the August moon, which was generally expected to herald a new clash on the narrow gateway to Alexandria, Marshal Rommel's move was directed against the Eighth Army's positions 25 miles south of El Alamein, at El Hemeimat, a conspicuous peak, 200 feet high, on the fringe of the salty Quattara depression.

His troops were immediately engaged by British light forces. A weak thrust—mainly by Italians—against the British main front was repulsed with loss to them.

This is the first real action since General Auchinleck stemmed Marshal Rommel's advance near El Alamein. In the meantime, the R.A.F. have pounded his supply lines, oil and ammunition dumps, and repair shops. When General Auchinleck handed over the command of the Eighth Army he disclosed that in the last two months the enemy had lost 10,000 men in prisoners alone.

Both forces are disposed along a comparatively narrow neck of land, between 20 and 30 miles wide, with the sea on one side and the Quattara Depression on the other, and are well protected with mine-fields, entanglements and elaborate systems of trenches, says Reuter.

ROME REPORT

ROME, Monday.—An Italian News Agency correspondent on the Egyptian front, telegraphing to-night, said:—"In the Mediterranean sector our armoured detachments made thrusts in depth against the British lines, crossing vast minefields and repelling enemy elements which tried to prevent our reconnaissance action. During the night British motorised patrols made contact with our troops in the northern sector. As a result of fighting in the central sector the Italians captured 70 prisoners belonging to British and Indian units."—(Reuter.)

AIR RAIDS ON TOBRUK

CAIRO, Monday.—Heavy bombers of the U.S. Air Force were active last night over Tobruk, said a communiqué from U.S. Headquarters to-day. Many fires and explosions were caused. Heavy A.-A. fire was encountered, but no enemy interception. All the raiders returned safely.

In a large scale raid on Tobruk R.A.F. and U.S. heavy and medium bombers attacked shipping and port facilities. They obtained near misses on a ship offshore and caused fires near the dock area, one of which was visible 15 miles away. Incendiary bombs were dropped on enemy tents south-east of Tobruk. In the Sollum area two Axis 'planes were shot down.—(Reuter.)

WHERE IS UNITED STATES NAVY?

PRESIDENT'S ANSWER

WASHINGTON, Monday.—President Roosevelt, in a radio address to-day, said that the United States Navy is carrying out the command, "Hit our enemy and hit him again, wherever and whenever we find him."

The occasion was the dedication of a new United States Navy Medical Centre at Bethesda, Maryland.

Speaking of "months without victories" after the attack on Pearl Harbour, "in which our enemies taunted us with the question, 'Where is the United States Navy?'" the President said: "To-day those enemies know the beginning of the answer to that question. They learned it in the Atlantic, in the Coral Sea and off Midway. They are learning it now in their attempts to recapture that which was taken from them—the Solomon Islands.

"Where is the United States Navy?

"It is there where it has always been. It is in there fighting. It is carrying out the command to hit our enemy, and hit him again, wherever we can find him. To-day in distant places we are fighting battles the like of which has never before been known. In the south-west Pacific ships and 'planes of our Fleet and long-range bombers of our Army are striking at the enemy from widely-separated bases — and striking together.

"For three years men have died and nations been tortured and enslaved to satisfy the brutal lust for power of a few inhuman tyrants —German, Italian and Japanese. To defeat such tyrants — to the removal from this earth of injustices and inequalities which create such tyrants and breed new wars—this nation is wholly dedicated.

"Let this hospital, then, stand for all men to see throughout the years as a monument to our determination to work and fight until the time comes when the human race shall have that true health in body, mind and spirit, which can be realised only in a climate of equity and faith."—(Reuter.)

THE MYSTERY BELL

Unless the mystery bell of Rathmines rings again it is unlikely that its origin will be discovered. Nobody has heard it since Saturday morning, when it tolled until dawn, waking residents and keeping police, wardens, firemen and reporters puzzled.

The police are not worrying about it any more. Residents have not had their rest disturbed since that night. Wardens and firemen have listened for it in vain, and even a reporter has had to admit defeat.

And so, like the Loch Ness monster, it is an unknown quantity. Until it makes its presence felt once more it will remain so.

RUSSIAN WORKER KILLED

Reuter reports:—Paris radio, quoting what was stated to be a Moscow report, said last night that Alexey Stakhanov, the Donetz miner, who inaugurated the mass movement bearing his name for speeding up industrial production, has been killed at the front.

COUNTY ANTRIM ARMS DUMP DISCOVERED

MAN WITH GUN SHOT DEAD

WHEN a small party of police raided a farm between Hannahstown and Stoneyford, Co. Antrim, yesterday afternoon, they were met at close quarters by a man with a Thompson gun. He was shot dead.

The gun, which was fully loaded, was found on examination to be jammed.

A large dump of arms, bombs and explosives was discovered in the building. It contained, among other things, 7 Thompson guns, 8 rifles, 60 revolvers, 7,000 rounds of rifle ammunition, a large amount of revolver ammunition, a large number of hand and other grenades, electric detonators, fuses, tear gas and 10 kegs of explosives.

A number of persons have been detained.

The search of the farm premises and the adjoining fields will be continued to-day. The kegs which the police found contained nitro-glycerine, gelignite and other explosives. The identity of the man shot by the police has not yet been established definitely. An identity card was found in his clothing, but the police suspect that it was a forgery, and that it is possible the man belonged to Eire.

JAPANESE FALL INTO TRAP

DRIVEN FROM MILNE BAY

LONDON, Monday. — Allied troops have thrown back the Japanese at Milne Bay, and are mopping up remnants driven into the peninsula on the north side.

All the Japanese supplies and equipment have fallen into the hands of the Allies.

Japanese losses have been heavy, but some troops may have escaped by evacuation in warships which left under cover of darkness.

The Japanese defeat is revealed in a special announcement from Allied Headquarters in the South Pacific, which describes how the Japanese found the Allies waiting, and fell into their trap "with disastrous results."

Another reverse for the Japanese in New Guinea is reported in to-day's Allied Headquarters' communiqué, which says that sporadic fighting in thick jungle country "has resulted in the repulse of the enemy with heavy casualties."

NEW ATTACKS

Capt. Hideo Hiraide, the Japanese Naval spokesman, in a talk on Tokyo radio, said:—"The enemy has not lost his ability to carry out further counter-attacks. He will come forward again. When the Americans come to attack us with superior forces we must be prepared to meet them with a force that cannot be overpowered."—(Reuter.)

MAKE SACRIFICES FOR VICTORY

HERR HITLER'S CALL TO GERMANY

IN anticipation of another winter of war, Herr Hitler yesterday addressed an appeal to the German people to make further voluntary sacrifices to secure final and decisive victory.

"The attempt of the international philanthropists, Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin, to starve the people of Europe has proved a failure," he said. "But if, in this greatest struggle of all times, the German soldiers are making sacrifices and undergoing deprivations that can hardly be imagined, then in this year the homeland is more than ever bound to make the greatest possible sacrifices.

"In war, no less than in peace, we want to affirm the common destiny of the German people by deeds and not alone by words, as in England and America. For from this struggle of the nations the German Reich must return to peace as a thoroughly National-Socialist State.

"In the years 1939 and 1940, and, perhaps, too, in 1941, our stupid antagonists might have thought that they could plunge the German people into an even worse Versailles through internal dissension than in 1918. It is the task of the front and of the working German nation to destroy for ever this hope of the international gold grubbing and Bolshevik beasts, and to make it clear that this war will not end with further exploitation by the possessing nations, but with a decisive victory of the "have-nots."

TWO ARMIES READY FOR BATTLE IN SOUTH

FROM OUR REPORTER.

SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTH, Monday.

TWO armies are facing each other in the South. Early to-morrow morning the largest number of soldiers ever to move in this country will begin the biggest manœuvres the Defence Forces have ever staged. Divided by a mixed terrain, which includes rivers and smaller streams, the Red Army and the Blue Army will spend the next fortnight struggling for victory over an area comprising the greater part of three counties.

This afternoon and to-night I travelled over the area in which one of the forces had been concentrating for the past few days. The paraphernalia of war could be seen only after close examination, but to an "enemy" reconnaissance 'plane, circling overhead, it was invisible. Bivouacs were tucked under hedges, lorries parked along tree-lined stretches of road, and soldiers moved around farmyards, the officers hardly distinguishable from privates in their "battle-dress."

THEY ALSO SERVE

Here and there, a field-kitchen, carefully screened, was surrounded by pot-watchers, and in one place soldiers lined up to buy cigarettes before marching to another post. Where lorries were parked on unwooded roads their presence was camouflaged by leafy boughs.

In the corner of one farmyard, in the shelter of a chestnut tree, a soldier passed on orders through a field-telephone. Further south—as I write—similar scenes are being watched by the interested country people. In the towns and villages impressions of real warfare are being given by the armed soldiers, who regulate the stream of military lorries and cars constantly passing through.

Here and there a ruined building in such a village adds to the realism and recalls the pictures we have seen of towns that have been lost and won on other soils.

Sometime to-morrow morning the word to march will be given, and the troops, whose training has been most intensive, will begin to learn something of what to expect in war.

They expect the learning to be tough, and are prepared for river-crossing, mountain-climbing, wet feet, wet necks, cold nights and hot days.

WARCRAFT AT GIBRALTAR

VICHY, Monday.—Two British battleships and seven torpedo-boats have entered the Gibraltar roadstead, stated a Vichy despatch from La Linea to-night. A large American tanker of recent construction has also dropped anchor. The despatch also stated that 38 British twin-engined bombers have arrived at Gibraltar, and quoted reports that the machines are destined for the Middle East and Africa.—(Reuter.)

DOCKYARD VISIT

MR. DE VALERA IN CORK

Accompanied by Messrs. Traynor and Aiken, Ministers for Defence and the Co-ordination of Defensive Measures, An Taoiseach (Mr. de Valera) spent a busy and what he later described as most interesting day in Cork Harbour yesterday. The party inspected in detail the recently re-opened dockyard at Rushbrooke, which has just completed an extensive overhaul of the Irish Larch, one of the ships acquired by Irish Shipping, Ltd. They then went to Cove and embarked on a trial run out the harbour on board the Irish Larch. Later on Mr. de Valera and party inspected the Irish Oak, another of the Irish merchant vessels which is at present discharging a cargo at Cork.

For the next few days Mr. de Valera and the other Ministers will watch Army manœuvres and inspect Army units in the South.

At Rushbrooke, the visitors were welcomed by Mr. S. Fitzgerald, Chairman, and other directors and officials. Mr. de Valera asked several questions regarding the capacity of the dock and plant, and showed keen interest in all that he saw. He was pleased to learn that work already done for Irish vessels, including the Irish Larch, had given considerable employment. Captain E. C. Horne, skipper of the Irish Larch, is a native of Cove, aged 32, and one of the youngest captains in the merchant service. He remarked to reporters during the vessel's trial run, that on calling to Iceland, the ship and its crew were given a particularly cordial reception, and were told that many of the population there were of Irish origin.

IRISH BEEF IN ENGLAND

PRICES AFFECT TRADE

THE price for Irish beef in the English market dropped yesterday from 11d. to 10½d. per lb. On the 21st inst. it will become 10½d. per lb.

Fluctuating prices—the present changes are in accordance with a sliding scale arranged by the British Ministry of Food—are blamed for many of the difficulties experienced at the British side of the Channel, where, as Major Orme told Irish cattle trade members a few days ago, transport arrangements frequently are upset by wide variations from week to week in the volume of Irish livestock available. Changing rates have affected production severely, and there has been no encouragement to the Irish producer to put weight on the beasts before shipping and meet the prevailing British demand for weighty animals.

WINTER PROSPECTS

Unless the Irish price is brought most of the way across the gap to the English price, which is over 1s. per lb., the prospects for the trade this winter with stall-feeding, even more expensive than it is in England, are very poor. Representations have been made by the trade to the British Ministry for a special allowance to enable a continuance of beef cattle production for the cross-Channel markets.

At present exports are low, working out at an average of about 8,000 a week. There is a fairly good trade—under licence—in dairy cattle, mostly in-calf animals. Some producers, who are now receiving from £32 to £35 per head for milch cows, have been complaining of the margin between the Dublin and the English market prices, which often are as high as £46 to £54, and it was pointed out to an Irish Times reporter that, in addition to the absence of a standard quality, such as in beef cattle, the trade had to recoup heavy expenses in shipping to special centres, and the fact that there are some 200 different shippers in competition in the cow trade ensured the best prices for the Irish producers.

ELECTION OF DUBLIN'S LORD MAYOR

MAY BE MATTER FOR COURTS

There now seems a possibility that the crux arising out of the failure of the Dublin Corporation to elect a Lord Mayor on Saturday last may be brought to a court of law for decision. If senior counsel, who is to be consulted by the Corporation, is of the same opinion as the Council's Law Agent—that the present Lord Mayor holds office until next June—and if the Department of Local Government adheres to its opinion that a new election must be held, then it seems likely that some of the parties will bring the matter to court for judgment.

It is interesting to note that this very point was dealt with explicitly by the Minister for Local Government (Mr. MacEntee) when the Local Government Act (1942) was passing through the Senate.

The Minister was questioned about the necessity for a new election for Mayors and Chairmen of local bodies in circumstances such as the present. The following exchanges then took place:—

Senator Foran—Will the Minister tell us what will be the position of Mayors and Chairmen of Councils?

Minister—They will have to be elected afresh.

Senator Foran—Is that definite, because there seems to be a good deal of doubt?

Minister—There is no doubt.

Senator Foran—They will have to be re-elected even in the city?

Minister—Yes.

PHŒNIX PARK DEER

While the firm which has contracted for the slaughter of the deer in the Phœnix Park was trying yesterday to devise more effective methods of driving the deer into the corral than those which failed on Sunday, a deputation was pleading with the Commissioners of Public Works to have the deer spared. The deputation, which was appointed after a conference at the Mansion House last Thursday, consisted of Mrs. Ardagh, Mr. F. A. Heney, V.S.; Mr. V. Rice, K.C.; Dr. E. W. Lynch, and Mr. F. W. Ryan, honorary secretary of the deputation.

Mr. Ryan stated last night that the Commissioners declined to interfere with the contract for the destruction of the herd. They admitted that they had not forwarded the resolutions or the arguments of the recent Mansion House protest meeting to the Minister for Finance. The deputation, Mr. Ryan added, now has forwarded them to Mr. Sean T. O'Kelly, together with an appeal to him to have the killing suspended pending further consideration. This stand is being taken on the grounds that, although the question may be small in relation to the protection of a herd of deer, an important point was raised in the question whether Government Departments might dispose of items of permanent value to the nation for mere money, and thus divest themselves of their responsibilities for conservation and development.

The conference will resume in the Mansion House at 11 o'clock this morning.

DUBLIN TO DUBLIN

The re-broadcast of the "greetings" programme from Dublin, New Hampshire, U.S.A., to Dublin, Ireland—through short-wave station WRUL (of the Worldwide Radio Foundation), Boston, Mass.—took place at 10.15 last night, with as much success as the first transmission on Thursday last.

Reception was uniformly good throughout, and telephone calls from listeners to the Irish Times afterwards showed that Dublin, N.H., had been well received in many parts of Dublin and county.

Before the broadcast the announcer read a telegram received from the Lord Mayor of Dublin, New Hampshire, thanking Alderman P. S. Doyle, Lord Mayor of Dublin, Ireland, for his cabled greetings and good wishes. Following was a quarter-hour programme by the Irish Fellowship League, during which the Eire and U.S. systems of government were compared. The speaker showed an intimate knowledge of Irish affairs, and dealt with housing schemes which he had seen in this country—particularly in Dublin, Cork and Limerick—which had been carried out by "a socially conscious Government."

The greetings programme in its original form was then repeated, and the broadcast came to a close.

LAST-MINUTE EFFORTS TO SAVE CONDEMNED MAN

CEASE WORK DECISION APPROVED IN DUBLIN

THE cessation of all work in the twenty-six counties for one hour to-morrow, should the execution of Thomas J. Williams, one of the six young Belfast men condemned to death for the murder of a police constable, take place in Belfast Jail to-morrow, was called for at meetings at the Mansion House, Dublin, last night.

Several thousands attended the meetings—one in the Round Room and another, simultaneously, in the street outside—which were called by the Reprieve Committee, and pledged their support to a demand for the reprieve of Williams and to the observance of Wednesday as a day of national mourning should the execution take place.

Labour leaders, who, with members of the Oireachtas, were prominent on both platforms, expressed the view last night that, in the event of the execution taking place, there would be a countrywide standstill between 11 a.m. and 12 noon to-morrow as a protest and as a tribute to the memory of Williams.

LORD MAYOR'S VISIT TO BELFAST

When the Lord Mayor of Dublin, Alderman P. S. Doyle, T.D., sought interviews with the Governor and the Premier of Northern Ireland, in Belfast yesterday, to make an appeal on behalf of Williams, neither of them would discuss the matter with him on constitutional grounds.

Alderman Doyle, who was accompanied by the Lady Mayoress, explained to an Irish Times reporter on his arrival in Belfast that he had come at the request of the Dublin Corporation to make further representations on behalf of Williams. He had a long conference with the Lord Mayor of Belfast (Alderman Black), who conveyed to him the resolution passed by the Belfast Corporation concerning the telegram from the Dublin Corporation asking the Belfast Corporation to use its influence to secure a reprieve for Williams, and said that as the question of reprieve had been dealt with by the Governor, the Corporation felt that it could take no action in the matter.

Alderman Doyle interviewed the parents of the six men, who thanked him for the effort he was making. When he endeavoured to secure an interview with the Northern Ireland Prime Minister he was informed that, on constitutional grounds Mr. Andrews could not discuss the question, but he would be glad to receive the Lord Mayor in other circumstances. Alderman Doyle tried to see the Governor of Northern Ireland at Government House, but was told politely that the Governor could not discuss a constitutional matter with him.

M.P.S' TELEGRAMS

During the day Nationalist members of the Northern Ireland Parliament sent telegrams to the British Home Secretary and the Northern Ireland Ministry of Home Affairs, asking for a reconsideration of the case of Williams. Copies of the telegrams to the Home Secretary were sent to the King, Mr. Churchill, Cardinal Hinsley and the Archbishop of Canterbury.

DUBLIN MEETING

Speaking at the Mansion House, Mr. Sean MacBride, Chairman of the Reprieve Committee, said that the reprieve of the five men had not eased in any way the pressure which had been exercised by public bodies in the 26 counties.

An appeal to the members of the minority of the South to use their influence with the Government of Northern Ireland to secure Williams's reprieve, and to send telegrams to Stormont, was made by Mr. Eamonn Donnelly.

The blood of Williams would consecrate the demand of the Irish people for a 32-county Republic, Mr. W. Norton, T.D., declared, adding that if the six-county Government should pursue its inhuman course, they would deserve the condemnation of the civilised nations of the world, and would expose themselves as a Government devoid of humanity.

Almost every one of the speakers stressed the point that it was not possible for Williams to have fired the fatal shot, because he was lying unconscious on the ground when the constable was injured; and Captain Denis Ireland, President of the Ulster Union Club, observed that while at the trial Williams's offer to give himself as a victim was not accepted, Ulster Protestants now wanted to know why it was accepted afterwards as a means of throwing somebody to the dogs.

Calling for a complete stoppage of work on Wednesday morning for one hour, Mr. Luke Duffy, Secretary of the Irish Labour Party, said that they expected a close-down in every form of activity, including transport of all kinds and all industry, and that all workers would go to their nearest churches and offer a prayer for the soul of the executed man.

APPEAL TO DUCHESS

The Castlebar Urban Council have forwarded a telegram to the Duchess of Abercorn, recalling her early and happy associations with the town and people, and respectfully requesting her influence to save the life of Thomas Williams.

A meeting held in Drommahane, North Cork, the birthplace of the father of the present Premier of Australia, Mr. John Curtin, decided to cable the Australian Premier and ask his influence towards securing the reprieve of Thomas Joseph Williams. The telegram was signed by Denis Curtin, of Kilpeddar, the Premier's cousin.

The Mayor of Limerick (Mr. D. J. O'Malley) has addressed an appeal to citizens to join with the rest of Ireland in closing all shops and business premises from 11 a.m. to 12 noon on Wednesday.

Similar action was taken by Dungarvan U.D.C. and Kilkenny Citizens' meeting.

The Cork Reprieve Committee have forwarded up to date 22,265 signatures to Belfast, including 270 from Cove.

THE LORD MAYOR

Alderman P. S. Doyle, Lord Mayor of Dublin, who returned last night to Dublin from Belfast, stated to our reporter:—"I informed the Lord Mayor of Belfast that, in my view, as indeed in the view of everyone in Dublin, the execution of this boy would be a very serious mistake. I undertook the journey to Belfast for the purpose of conveying this view clearly to the Lord Mayor of Belfast." Alderman Doyle also called on the Duke of Abercorn, Governor of Northern Ireland, who, unfortunately, was not at home, and left a letter setting out a number of considerations which might have escaped the Governor's attention.

As a protest against the proposed execution to-morrow, the Lord Mayor of Cork (Alderman R. S. Anthony), in a statement last night, requested the city to observe a five minutes' silence to-day, and, if the execution did take place, to hold a further five minutes' silence on to-morrow.

CHARM IN IRISH LIFE

Miss GYPSY DENYS BURTON

Raven black hair softly curling, expressive eyes of the deepest brown, white even teeth, a beautifully formed mouth and a bewitching smile. This is how you sum up Miss Gipsy Denys Burton, the only daughter of Sir Charles Peter Denys. A lover of the country, she rows, rides, fishes and shoots; yet her complexion is flawless. She says "Pond's looks after my complexion and I don't worry about it. I find that however long I stay out in the open sun, wind and rain Pond's Cold Cream soothes and softens the skin, as a powder base I find nothing equal to Pond's Vanishing Cream. My favourite powder is Pond's Peach, it is delightful."

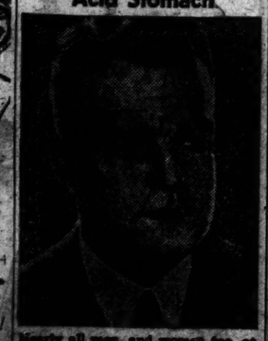
Middle-Aged Tired Feeling

is probably due to Acid Stomach



Nearly all men, and women too, at about the age of 40 begin to suffer more or less with acidity which gives rise to the varied symptoms of dyspepsia. Food causes flatulence and possibly pain. You lose tone and suffer from physical and mental weariness which shakes your self-confidence and makes you imagine that old age is overtaking you.

Your doctor would tell you to dismiss the thought and banish the trouble by taking 'Milk of Magnesia.' It soon eases your sour stomach. He would also assure you that 'Milk of Magnesia' is the antacid most acceptable and soothing to the stomach.

'Milk of Magnesia' restores the normal activity of the gastric juice so that the digestion of food proceeds easily, without disturbance.

The effect of 'Milk of Magnesia' in neutralising acidity is marvellous. With good digestion regained, most of the "pep" you think you've lost will quickly return. Get either the liquid preparation or the remarkable new 'Milk of Magnesia' brand Tablets. They're delightful to take and easy to carry with you.

Obtainable everywhere.

'Milk of Magnesia' 1/3 and 2/6 (Treble Size). Also 'Milk of Magnesia' Tablets 6d., 1/-, 2/- and 3/6.

'MILK OF MAGNESIA'

'Milk of Magnesia' is the trade mark of Phillips' Proprietors of Magnesia.

ZHUKOV'S ATTACK

By Our Military Correspondent.

THE Russian offensive west of Moscow along the Rzev-Vyazma sector of the front must be assessed at its true value. As things are, we find all sorts of far-fetched and ingenious explanations being put forward. We are told, for instance, that it pivots on Voronezh, and is likely to endanger the forward move of the Bock group of armies in the extreme south. And, again, it is described as "Stalin's decisive offensive," etc. It seems quite easy to find a simpler and more likely explanation than these by going into the conditions of the Russian fighting in a methodical way.

COMMUNICATIONS

The primary factor conditioning all Russian strategy—as between the several front sectors—is communications. These have always been relatively poor, in the lateral, north-south sense. They were worse last May than they were a year ago, and they are still worse to-day. In a word, large-scale lateral displacements of men and material can be carried out by the Russians only with great difficulty. And, of course, the Caucasus region is no longer in effective touch with the rest of Russia at all—operationally, at least.

Such being the character of Russian communications, it follows that the Russian Command must endeavour to anticipate where masses of troops and material are most likely to be needed or to be useful—and to dispose them at those points ahead of time. Such anticipation is possible by an intelligent war-direction such as the Russians manifestly possess. The method is certainly inferior to a well-developed network of railway, road and airway—but it is the best that can be done under the conditions in which the Russians find themselves. Probably a concrete example will make clear the point it is intended to convey.

In the present strategic situation it would, evidently, be most desirable for the Russians to mount a major strategic counter-attack in the region of Voronezh, and launch it in a south-westerly direction. But, at the moment, they lack the material means for doing this. In point of fact, they have already used up the resources massed here at one time—largely in a quite valuable forestalling offensive. You cannot eat your cake and have it; and a considerable time must elapse before Voronezh can be stocked up again to the required extent.

Moscow, however, presents no such difficulties. Moscow, indeed, is the point at which it will always be easiest for the Russians to accumulate great stores of men and material—including the Anglo-American resources coming in via the Arctic route. Admittedly, Moscow is not as well situated as Voronezh for launching an offensive return calculated to give relief to the Southern Russian armies—but such a Moscow offensive is a very useful second-best effort.

After all, Moscow is the Russian capital—and, last year, it was the objective of a most sustained and formidable onslaught. Any considerable success in its vicinity must, necessarily, be of great value to the Russians, materially and morally. As it is, they claim important gains of ground, heavy casualties inflicted, great quantities of war material captured or destroyed. If the German High Command entertained any intention of following up their southern offensive with another attack on Moscow, the present Russian operation must certainly have materially interfered with their plans. Also, the Axis depth of penetration into Russian territory here cannot be compared at all with the advances in the south. Every mile recovered is proportionately more valuable.

COINCIDENCE

Zhukov's attack has coincided in point of time with a slowing-down of the Axis offensive in the south, but it does not follow that it has caused that slowing-down. Rather does it seem to be the case that the Axis push was already coming towards its dead point. That Stalingrad would be most formidably defended was a foregone conclusion, and even Novorossisk is showing signs of the Russian traditional obstinacy in defending their naval bases. The German command is making hay along the northern slopes of the Caucasus while it can, but the rate of progress is diminishing. Austrian, Bavarian and Italian mountain troops are aiming to secure the passes before they are closed by snow. The climate of the northern Caucasian slope in winter is as severe as anywhere in the southern half of Russia. In the circumstances Axis progress in the Caucasus as a whole—in the west especially—has been less than might have been looked for a month ago. Field-Marshal Bock opted for Stalingrad as the main prize. The Germans always play for victory—not for safety—when there's an even-money chance. If Stalingrad holds out it may prove the missing of a chance towards Novorossisk.

DUBLIN IS DOUBLING

For the fourth successive week the Dublin house-to-house waste paper collection has been double the total of the preceding week. Four weeks ago the teams brought in for the week 1 ton 16 cwt. The following week it was 3 tons 16 cwt., the next week 7½ tons, and last week 15 tons.

Typical of the change in outlook is the experience of one team which, in a certain district six weeks ago, had only 11 successful calls. Back in the same district one day last week they had 22 successful calls.

Even Saturday, on which the collectors work a very short day, is now showing respectable totals. Last Saturday, for example, one team, visiting houses in the Stephen's Green district, obtained 6 cwt., and a team visiting Fitzwilliam square district obtained 4½ cwt.

As a result of the good response in some districts the collectors are each making around £2 per week in wages and commission, though in other districts, where the response has not been so good, the collectors are only earning about 27s. The company's attitude is that the more the collectors earn the better it will be pleased, for higher earnings mean higher returns of waste paper.

Much delay is still being caused by a small number of householders, who keep the collectors talking for about half an hour for a few pounds of paper, and by others who invite the collectors to call back in the afternoon, thus disorganising the whole routine of their calls.

LIMERICK WOMAN'S DEATH

There were no further developments yesterday in Gardai investigations into the death of Mrs. Bridget Drury (70), Kilcornan, Co. Limerick, whose charred remains were discovered on Saturday in the burnt-out ruins of her cottage. The inquest opened by Mr. M. E. Cussen was adjourned on the application of Superintendent Cooney, after evidence that death was due to suffocation had been given by Dr. McGrath, State Pathologist.

GENERAL HEALTH & VITALITY IMPROVED

Greystones, Co. Wicklow.

Sir—

"I feel I must write you to say how pleased I am with the results obtained from your Cod Liver Oil Tablets. I was persuaded to try them by a friend, and although it only have taken about four boxes (one month's course) my general health and vitality have improved remarkably. I also increased my weight by 14½ pounds.

I will have pleasure in recommending them to others.

Cod Liver Oil in Sugar Coated Tablets

Sickly, skinny, nervous, overworked men and women get stronger, healthier, more vigorous, and put on needed weight in a few days just by taking JESSELS COD LIVER OIL EXTRACT TABLETS. They are as tasty as sweets, and they are marvellous!

Everybody knows that Cod Liver Oil is a wonderful vitaliser, health producer, and flesh creator, because it contains more than any other food, the essential vitamins A and D. But the oil itself is sickening, has a nauseating smell, and is indigestible, so Doctors everywhere now prescribe JESSELS COD LIVER OIL EXTRACT TABLETS because they replace the oil to advantage.

LIGHT VANS TO RETURN

USE OF PRODUCER PLANTS

Eire's fleet of several thousand light motor vans, immobilised since August 1st, when their petrol ration was withdrawn, may soon be on the roads again if the gas-producing plant makers can supply them with the necessary equipment.

The Society of Motor Traders has just heard from the Department of Supplies that permits will be given to fit these vans with gas-producing plants. It will still be necessary, however, to apply for a permit, and a permit will only be granted for proper vans, and not for motor cars converted into vans since the "emergency."

CHAOS CAUSED

The withdrawal of the petrol permits for light vans caused chaos in the delivery services of the Dublin department stores, and of fish, meat, fruit and flower traders throughout Eire. Many of them have tried to maintain their services by taking on squads of carrier-bicycles and messenger boys. But carrier-bicycles have been difficult to obtain, and, in any case, they could not cover the area served by a small van.

The transport manager of a large department store said yesterday that he thought there would now be a general move to obtain gas-producing plants.

"But you may be sure that traders will not rush too quickly into it," he said. "We remember what happened before, when some of us spent a few hundred pounds buying gas bags for our vans, and, after a short time, had to scrap them when the Government forbade the Gas Company to sell us any more gas."

SCHOOL-CHILDREN'S HOT MEALS

The statement that they are prepared to go on with their school meals scheme until September 20—"and no longer"—has been issued by the chairman of the group of Dublin University students who have been for many months delivering hot meals to school-children in the city.

While, it is understood, certain moves are being made behind the municipal scenes in support of the students' desire that the onus of running the scheme shall be removed from them to the Corporation, the students yesterday resumed, after the summer vacation, their delivery of meals to 1,000 children daily, and may double this number to-day.

Between now and September 20, they state, money is urgently needed, and they have asked the Irish Times again to mention that subscriptions should be sent to Miss Jean Henry, 20 Kenilworth square, Rathgar, Dublin.

SHIP'S CAPTAIN IN COURT

When Trevor S. Williams, a ship's captain, was charged at Cork District Court yesterday with having imported into Eire a quantity of cigarettes and tobacco, the duty on which had not been paid, John Sullivan, Customs Officer, said the cigarettes and tobacco were in a drawer in the captain's room, and had not been declared. In reply to witness, defendant said the cigarettes and tobacco were obtained through the British Ministry of Transport for the use of the crew, and he saw no reason to declare them. Mr. Moloney, solicitor, defending, said the case should have been more carefully examined before bringing it into Court. Defendant never had any intention of defrauding the Revenue authorities. The Justice ruled a dismiss.

"OLD ORDER HAS GONE"

CANBERRA, Monday.—The exchange ships with the former Japanese Minister to Australia, Mr. Kawai; the Consul-General, Mr. Hattori, and 32 members of the Consular staffs and a large number of civilian internees left Australia on August 16 carrying 1,200 tons of foodstuffs and medical supplies valued at £100,000 to Japan for prisoners of war Mr. Kawai, giving a farewell interview, said: "I have failed in my mission and return to Japan bitterly disappointed. The outbreak of war was the greatest blow I have received in my life. . . . My spirit has been broken. I believe that the world will be a better place for all after this war. The old order has gone, no matter which side wins."—("Times" Telegram, per P.A.)

Phœnix Park and Powerstown Cards

By Our Curragh Correspondent.

THE CURRAGH, Monday.

IN the Ratoath Plate, at the Phœnix Park meeting next Saturday, the outstanding sprinters — Denturius, Balbriggan and Great Sacrifice—can meet again. The three-year-old Great Sacrifice must put up 7lb. extra for his win here on Saturday, and this brings his weight to 9-9, or 2lb. less than Balbriggan, and Denturius will be conceding 18lb. This is a typical sprinter's course, and the race, which will attract a large field, should prove one of the most interesting.

Great Sacrifice, a bay gelding by Windsor Lad—Araminta, was one of the foremost of last season's juveniles, winning four times in succession out of half a dozen attempts. This year Great Sacrifice did not get into winning stride until the season was well advanced, and he is now making up for lost time.

The Powerstown programme on Thursday is not made for Curragh horses in the main, but several notable performers from other parts are likely to be seen out. Dan Kelly, in the Shannon Plate, is by Farirav, who used win valuable races when in training with the late John Doyle at Rossmore Lodge. Dan Kelly's own exploits include the winning of a Punchestown Cup and also a chase at Mallow. Main Guard, in the same event is the entry of the Powerstown manager, Mr. Tom Morris. He is by Apron from that more-than-useful mare, Ballyspellin.

The Melitta Lodge trainer, Mr. D. Malone, has Bantry Boy, who has been schooled by Mr. L. T. Byrne, in the Leo Plate. His second at Punchestown, in the Drogheda, to Knight of Clonee was meritorious.

The same owner's Inniscrone, who created a surprise by scoring recently at Leopardstown, enjoys the honoured position of top-weight for the Maigue Hurdle, in which appears also Paddy Beary's charge, Red Sale, who as the saying goes, would be second to anything. Green Star, who is on the upgrade, and Dancing Years, formerly trained at the Curragh, are others worth noticing in this race, while a candidate for which there must be a very considerable future is Toy Marine, trained by P. Slestor. This horse is own-brother to Brown Admiral, one of the most popular steeplechasers in the country when he was scoring in Mr. A. D. Comyn's colours.

It is unfortunate that Durbar and Persian Rose had to be scratched from the Red Cross Steeplechase, and further interest is detracted from the Baldoyle event by the withdrawal of The Gripper, September and Mountain Loch. But there is any amount of material left for an exciting contest. St. Martin was none the worse for his sensational contest with My Cherry in the Foxrock Steeplechase, where Cecil Brabazon's charge gave 2st. 8lb. and a neck beating to Mr. T. Baker's good mare.

CAPT. HOGG DEAD

Captain Thomas Hogg, prominent racehorse trainer for many years, died yesterday in a Cambridge nursing home. He had been ill about a fortnight. He was private trainer to the late Lord Glanely for ten years, during which time he won four classic races—the St. Leger with Singapore and Chulmleigh, the Oaks with Rose of England, and the 2,000 Guineas with Colombo. After the 1938 season Captain Hogg suffered a breakdown in ill-health, but resumed training at the beginning of 1940 at Heath House, Newmarket.

He started this season with 19 horses, including several belonging to the late Lord Glanely. Lady Sybil, whom he trained for Mr. M. N. Benson, won her fifth race at Newmarket last Tuesday. She is regarded as one of the most promising two-year-olds in training.

Of Scottish descent, Captain Hogg, who was also a veterinary surgeon, raced in South Africa before settling down as a trainer in England at Manor Farm, Wiltshire. He was a curling enthusiast, and skipped the Junior Si Morita team of top-weight for the Maigue when they won the Gossaro Cup in 1936.

FOUR POSSIBLE CHAMPIONS

Four teams still are in the running for the Leinster Senior League Cricket Championship, and one more series of matches will virtually finish the competition so that a season of exceptional interest has retained its attractiveness to the very end. Saturday's matches are:—

Leinster v. Pembroke, Phœnix v. Clontarf, and Merrion v. Y.M.C.A.

If Leinster and Phœnix both win they will tie at the top of the table; if one wins and the other loses, the winners will win the championship. If, however, both should lose or even if Leinster and Y.M.C.A. were to beat Merrion, Y.M.C.A. would be the champions. A further possibility is that Phœnix and Leinster should fail to win their matches and Merrion beat Y.M.C.A., in which case Merrion would be champions if they successfully came through their outstanding match against Civil Service. The table reads as follows:—

	P.	W.	D.	L.	Pts.
Leinster	13	7	3	3	65
Phœnix	13	7	3	3	68
Y.M.C.A.	13	7	2	4	62
Merrion	13	6	2	5	54
Dublin University	13	6	2	5	54
Pembroke	13	6	2	5	54
Clontarf	13	4	2	7	38
Civil Service	13	1	—	12	8

GOOD EFFORT BY CO. WEXFORD

County Wexford, who were beaten by Pembroke on Saturday, lost to a Leinster "A" team by 42 runs in their match at Rathmines yesterday. Their match with Merrion, which had to be postponed owing to the weather on Sunday, will be played to-day at Anglesea road.

10,000 SEE FINE SOCCER MATCH

Upwards of 10,000 enthusiasts paid tribute to Jimmy Dunne, the former Shamrock Rovers, Sheffield United and Arsenal "star," at Dalymount Park last night, when a strengthened Rovers' team and strong Belfast Celtic eleven were in opposition for the great forward's benefit. The result was a score of two goals each.

From the beginning the match was played at a fast pace, the players giving of their best. Moore, who occupied his old position of centre-forward in the Rovers' team, staged an effective "comeback." Early in the first half he scored a typical goal, and was distinctly unlucky not to get his head to the ball on two other occasions, when Kelly, the Celtic goalkeeper, was under severe pressure. His distribution of the ball, especially in the first half, savoured of his old brilliancy.

Dunne also showed glimpses of his former adroitness, one grand shot of his from well out rebounding off the crossbar with the goalkeeper out of position.

The marking was keen on either side, with the result that the respective forwards seldom were allowed to indulge in sustained bouts of passing.

Early in the second half the Celtic right winger, Bonner, got the equaliser for Celtic. Coad, the Rovers' left-half, put his side ahead again, and just before the end Bonner equalised. It was a fine game, played with great verve.

GOLF BALLS: ANOTHER RESTRICTION

The British Ministry of Supply for the control of rubber goods has issued an Order, No. 15, which took effect from yesterday, under which manufacturers of golf balls are prohibited from using rubber, balata, or gutta percha in the re-covering of used golf balls. Some months ago the British Government prohibited the manufacture of new golf balls, and manufacturers, in order to relieve the shortage of golf balls, undertook to re-cover old balls.

The new Order will have a dire effect on the golf ball trade, but manufacturers are experimenting with a substitute for re-covering, and may be able to partially meet the difficulty.

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Monday.—The Stock Exchange opened the week on a firm note, but trading was quiet. The leading issues staged a mild recovery, although timidity ruled on the buying side. At the same time, initiative was maintained, but purchasers were disposed to wariness pending new inflation developments. Fractional advances were fairly well distributed in the late dealings, but minor declines were also abundant. The trend at the close was irregular. The turnover of 247,000 shares comprised 849 issues, of which 213 advanced, 173 declined and 163 remained unchanged.

LONDON MONEY MARKET

The comfortable credit conditions indicated by this week's floating debt arrangements were fully apparent in Lombard street yesterday. Most of the clearing banks were keen buyers of bills, and the supply in market hands was barely adequate to their requirements.

AMATEUR BOXING

The Carisbrian Club, who will stage the opening club tournament of the season at the National Stadium, Dublin, on September 8th, have received an Agreement Form, signed by Jimmy Hyde, from Mr. J. J. Rowsome, P.C., Hon. Secretary, Mount street Club, for his contest with J. McCormack (Carisbrian), who won the Irish Middle-Weight title in 1940. McCormack, who has been boxing in England for some time, and has won all his bouts there, is boxing as a welter-weight in the present, and his contest with Hyde should be a thrilling one.

TOO MANY WASPS
This year's abundant yield of fruit is endangered to some extent by the appearance earlier, and in greater numbers, than usual of wasps. The fact has been attributed by an authority to the mildness of last winter, a wasp society lasts only for a year, the queen alone surviving through the winter months to start a new colony in the following spring.
The wasps ravages plums, gooseberries, apples, and so on, by tunnelling through the skin into the interior of the fruit. The insidious lodger in an orchard quite easily may swallow a wasp with a mouthful of apple. "Always kill a wasp when you see one," advises the authority quoted yesterday, the nest of the (unwanted) wasp is found, it should be dealt with forthwith. Petrol should be dropped on it, and its occupants destroyed by fire or scalding. The Social Wasp (vespida) builds paper-like nests. These may be dealt with in a similar manner, but should be carefully removed, as they are valuable for the manufacture of paper.

DUTCH RECEPTION

Dutch Nationals in Ireland celebrated Queen Wilhelmina's 62nd birthday by attending a small reception given in Dublin yesterday by the Consul-General for the Netherlands, Mynheer L. R. A. W. Wenink.
Queen Wilhelmina returned to England via Foynes on Wednesday last, after a visit to the United States, where she was guest of honour at a dinner given by President Roosevelt. She also visited New York and Washington, where a State reception in her honour was given by President Roosevelt.
On her arrival in England Queen Wilhelmina was met by her son-in-law, Prince Bernhard, now a pilot in the R.A.F. who arrived from Scotland by special permission of the King, in his private plane.

The Chief Industry

Agriculture is not the only industry in Ireland which has been subsidised in recent years. The public has grown accustomed to the argument that a new business cannot be conducted without a tariff to withstand all external competition, and, too often, without a certain amount of financial support from the State or the people. Agriculture, however, is not a new business; it is the oldest of all our industries, and the urban dweller may be forgiven when he asks if it is not time that agriculture was able to "stand upon its own feet." That, of course, may not be altogether a fair question. The farmer has to contend with factors, such as the weather, which prevent the experiences and the profits of one year from serving as a guide to the experiences and profits of the next. The prices of his raw materials, his manures, his seeds and his feeding-stuffs may show increases out of all proportion to the increases which he may ask in the prices of his products. As for subsidies, a contributor to The Farmers' Gazette has made what amounts to the point that the farmers are subsidising the towns, inasmuch as the rates, of which they pay their share, are used very largely for social services that increase the amenities of city life and bring no benefit at all to the dweller in the country. In a country like Ireland agriculture ought to be as attractive and as profitable an industry as the manufacture of boot-laces, hats or cigarettes; but it cannot be turned into an attractive and profitable industry by giving the farmer privileges that are denied to other citizens. Discussing the position of farming in England last week, The Financial News described agriculture's claim to privilege as, frankly, a source of danger to the community: once it was granted, there was no end to its implications. Obviously, a "prosperous agriculture" does not mean a privileged agriculture, but one which is economically sound and can remain sound without reducing the standards of the rest of the community—as inevitably must happen when meat, bread and vegetables become luxuries for the labourer in the towns and cities. A Committee on Land Utilisation in Rural Areas sat recently in England, and in a minority report one of its members expressed the view that in a progressive society the ultimate prosperity of agriculture must depend upon increased efficiency. Has the bulk of the farming community in this country given evidence of a striving for efficiency, or have its members been content to farm in the way that their fathers and grandfathers farmed? Farming, in order to be prosperous, must be efficient; but the fact must be faced by Dail deputies, Muintir na Tire, and everyone else who deplores the migration of country people to the towns, that with increased efficiency a greater amount of produce may be taken from the land by a smaller number of workers. To stick to out-of-date methods, in order that more men and women than could otherwise be necessary may continue to live upon the land, may be to defer the advent of really prosperous agriculture and to perpetuate the system of subsidies that often are, in reality, subsidies to inefficiency. That dilemma — the choice between lessened employment and increased production—is more closely applicable to Great Britain, with her comparatively large farms—than to Ireland: yet Ireland, too, may be compelled to think in those terms some day.

"Carrot Complexion"

The propaganda of the British Ministry of Food has succeeded to an extent that can only be regarded as alarming. A number of cases have been reported of an abnormality of the complexion which leading doctors have decided, upon investigation, to be attributable to an excessive consumption of carrots. It will be recalled that, during the winter, the Ministry took advantage of the fact that carrots were cheap and easily obtainable to conduct an intensive "carrot-campaign." The food-value of this "vegetable was "boosted" throughout the United Kingdom by means of constant advertisement in the newspapers, and citizens became convinced that a diet of carrots would endow them rapidly with clear complexions and glowing health. It was claimed, even, that they would develop "cats' eyes"—no small recommendation to a nation accustomed to total blackout. There is, no doubt, a considerable basis in fact for almost all the claims that were made on behalf of the carrot. The Ministry, however, did not know its own strength. Intent upon urging people to eat all the carrots that they could obtain—probably expecting to arouse, at most, half the enthusiasm which it advocated—it failed to foresee the possible consequences of excessive patriotism. The prospect of an outbreak of "carrot complexion" was never even considered. To do justice to the Ministry, it must be admitted that the quantities of carrots consumed by the sufferers were decidedly abnormal. One woman ate eight pounds weekly over a period of several months; another ate six pounds weekly; and in every case the household consumed also its proper amount of cooked carrots. Complete recovery followed a return to a more reasonable menu. Unfortunately, suspicion, once aroused, is hard to allay. Not long ago the Minister of Food instituted his "Eat More Potatoes" campaign. Dietitians testified that the widespread belief that potatoes were fattening was quite unfounded, and one of them followed up with a positive discharge to the effect that they conduce to "a clear complexion, a bright eye and a glowing appearance." In view of the carrot-complex which similar propaganda has developed, it would seem to be advisable to temper this encouragement with a recommendation for moderation. If this precaution is neglected, there may yet grow up a race of potato-addicts, ardent devotees of the "spud," to whom their three or four stone a day will be as nothing; and then the medical profession may be alarmed once more by a violent epidemic of "potato face."

Problems of the Pipe

A reader of The Times has confessed, with laudable frankness, that owing to the shortage of matches he is compelled to switch on the electric fire, and light a spill from it, whenever he wishes to light his pipe. The response, as was to be expected in a country intent on saving fuel, is a widespread wail of horror. "What else," the reader asks, "is there to do?" and patriotic people from all over England have written to tell him. Some of them strike a note of severe austerity by remarking that there is no shortage of matches in houses where nobody smokes; but the majority sympathise, at least, with the plight of a pipe-smoker, and are not so heartless as to suggest that he should abandon his pipe. There is no need to go into the details of the ingenious pipe-lighting devices that have been suggested. Some of them, which involve the use of paraffin oil, would be quite impracticable for the Irish smoker in a similar difficulty. The point of interest is that the gentleman in question, who indicts cigarette-lighters as in the main quite useless for the lighting of a pipe, neglects to observe that a lighter may be employed, just as well as an electric fire, for enkindling a spill. The question then arises whether the use of spills is not in itself a waste of paper. In England a citizen may be prosecuted for burning; but the public-spirited may be moved by the thought that they are destroying a commodity valuable to the nation, as the thrifty may be moved by the consideration that the fuel which they thus employ is worth no less than four pounds a ton. The more industrious smokers can resort to spills cut from a block of wood, or parents may bribe their offspring to employ their penknives and their destructive talents to the same end. Whatever plan is adopted, however, there is no excuse for that device which has been detected both in England and here, as far as rationing permits—a constantly-burning gas ring, from which newspaper torches may be lit to apply to the fires, cigarettes and tobacco in all parts of the house.

THE Earl and Countess of Rosse, who spent the week-end in Dublin, have left for England.

Professor and Mrs. Walter Starkie have arrived in London from Madrid. They expect to come to Dublin at the end of this week.

Mrs. Drummond Kirkpatrick has arrived in Dublin from Belfast, and is staying at the Shelbourne Hotel.

Mrs. Edward Kennedy has left Co. Dublin for the North of Ireland, where she is staying with her daughter, Viscountess Jocelyn.

Mr. Reginald Keatinge, District Vice-president, is leaving Dublin this week for London, to attend a meeting of Rotary International.

Major S. N. Purdon, who spent the week-end in Dublin, has returned to Co. Cavan.

The marriage arranged between Dr. Owen O'Malley, youngest son of Mrs. O'Malley and the late Mr. A. O'Malley, Castlebar, Co. Mayo, and Ethel Mary, second daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. Griffith, "Glenaveigh," 30 Haddon road, Clontarf, will take place on Sept. 22nd.

The marriage between Doreen Elliott Wilkinson and Jeremiah Mortimer Slattery, M.B., R.A.F.V.R., will take place quietly in England this month.

IRISH STAGE ART
LACK OF ORIGINALITY

The advent of the present emergency had seemed to render it inevitable that many leading Irish theatres would close down; actually it had resulted in a renaissance in Irish stage art. This opinion was expressed in the course of his address yesterday to the members of the Dublin Rotary Club at the weekly luncheon at the Gresham Hotel by Mr. John Lyons, Publicity Manager of Irish Cinemas, Ltd., and the Dublin Theatres Co., Ltd. "In normal times," he said, "with audiences accepting the London companies as the natural thing there are few among us who would have explored the possibilities of Ireland's writing talent, and we knew how much playgoers and art in general would have been the poorer."

While variety was the spice of life, novelty was the essence of variety, and for some reason or other there were no novel or original performers to be found in Ireland. During the past three years the management of the Theatre Royal had given at least 8,000 recorded auditions in such widely separated centres as Dublin, Cork, Limerick, Clonmel, Athlone and Carlow. At least seventy per cent. of this number were singers (or rather "crooners"), ten per cent. Irish dancers, ten per cent. instrumentalists, seven per cent. comedians and three per cent. dancers. "Yet out of this large number of aspirants there was not a single outstanding discovery," said Mr. Lyons. Theatre managers had been equally unsuccessful in their nation-wide appeal for script writers of ten-minute sketches, twenty-minute playlets or of a full revue. There was here an unlimited field for imaginative and original script writers, and it seemed incredible that after three years' constant search no names had arisen in the variety world, and that in this land, famed for its wit, there was not one new natural comedian to be found.

At the beginning of the emergency the task of presenting shows was a very bit as arduous as that of finding the artists, because Dublin theatres had long been accustomed to have "props" and even scenery from England. Yet within a short time a new industry sprang up in the Irish theatreland in which scenic painters, carpenters, dress designers, electricians and seamstresses had found employment. "With this new industry the standard in staging reached a new level, and any of Dublin's recent shows," said Mr. Lyons, "are ample proof of the skill of our stage artisans."

Mr. Vincent O'Hare, Mr. Gerald Malone, and the President, Mr. A. G. Bruty thanked Mr. Lyons for his interesting paper.

DUBLIN THEATRES

Gaiety.—Jimmy O'Dea's show, "And So To Laugh" began its fifth week yesterday, and promises to continue. There is every reason why it should—Jimmy at the top of his form, May Devlitt singing better than ever, Mary Donnelley a great dancer, and Dennis Barry, Josephine O'Hagan, Maye Tipple, and Jim Jonson are some of the reasons.

The Abbey.—The fourth week of the latest revival of Lennox Robinson's comedy, "The Whiteheaded Boy," was begun last night. Always a popular play, it was received with much applause and laughter.

Royal.—The fifth edition of "Happy Blending" is, indeed, a happy blending of popular ingredients. There is Peaxy Dell with a selection of old and new favourites, sung and played in her inimitable manner; Mike Nolan, Noel Purcell and Jack Harrington with a selection of amusing, if not entirely new, jokes; the Royal Violettes in a number of varied and attractive dance routines; a song scene from "The White Horse Inn" beautifully presented by Jimmy Campbell and the band, with the Royal Serfette, and, of course, the ever-popular "Take It or Leave It," with Eddie Byrne, which was almost spoiled by a contestant who seemed to fancy himself in the rôle of chief comedian. On the screen "Rings on Her Fingers," with Henry Fonda and Gene Tierney.

Queen's.—"Serenade to Happiness," which entered its fifth week last night, has lost none of its initial freshness. Eire O'Reilly sings well, as usual, and all the "veterans" of the show maintain their reputations. Odagh, Dublin's first officially-styled "Oomph Girl," has a good personality, all of her own, which she uses to advantage. An abundance of comedy is provided by Jimmy Harvey, Jack Cruise, Cecil Sheridan, and Tim Kenny. Denis Murray has contributed four new sketches. More music comes from Liam O'Connor and Patty Ryan, while the Moonbeams and Alex. C. Fiyer and his orchestra give their usual smooth performances.

Olympia.—"French Leave," by Reginald Berkeley, is the happiest selection Carl Clopet has made for his Olympia productions for several weeks. It is written about the lighter side of life in French billets during the last war. If it had been written to-day it would have been more sophisticated in its plot and more subtle in its construction, but the comic characters and situations are so sound as to make the play worth a revival, even now. The production was lucky in having Jack Somner for the Englishman part which she played with her usual liveliness and charm. Some of the other characterisations were much below what the play needed for success, but J. H. Elvin was good as a liverish, but not unlikeable, old General, while Kevin Young and Robert Dawson, as the younger officers, were competent.

WHATELY AND NEWMAN

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—There is no hint or suggestion in the extract from Mr. Fear's book which Canon Simpson gives, that Whately made any approach to Newman that would lead the latter to anticipate an invitation to Dublin. Did Newman seek an invitation in any way? If not, what caused him to jump to the conclusion that Whately would want him? Did it come from a delusion, or fevered imagination? Did he leave any letter or note that would explain the strange matter?

The reference to his "injured vanity" (Mr. Faber's phrase), or to his having been "sorely disappointed for being overlooked" (Canon Simpson's) do not help in the absence of information which I had sought. Newman stated precisely what he purposed to do in his answer to Kingsley's charges against him, and kept to the point. His work was an appeal to all creed and classes of his countrymen; it was an historic success, and remains one of the permanent autobiographies of the world.

Canon Simpson's dismissal of it as "a brilliant example of spiritual rhetoric, the story of a sentimental journey for the benefit of sentimental Anglicans of the last century," cannot, surely, be taken seriously, and his controversial gibes at the Anglican community are definitely out of place in this crisis of world affairs.—Yours, etc.,

JOHN HAGELAND.

CRUISKEEN LAWN

By Myles-na gCopaleen

WHAT would you do before you'd write "Sorry—before you'd sit down and write this stuff?

"I'D ATE IT. D'YE HEAR ME, THAT'S WHAT I'D DO, I'D ATE IT FIRST.

What is like what you always said?

That the poor helps the poor.

What will that be out of you?

Enough.

What condition may be said to be the prerequisite for a fine day?

The condition that the rain keep off.

To what variable horizon can some people not be trusted?

As far as you would throw them.

What tribe has unique rights to the epithet finny?

Your men the fish.

Feathered?

Your men the birds.

Lost?

Your men the Gaels.

What is the sole and true badge of nationhood?

The national language.

Without what also would it be idle to seek to revive the national language.

Our distinctive national culture.

The Plain People of Ireland: What is that you had up there about "finny"? Fish aren't men, are they? Do you mean mermen?

Myself: I was referring to the denizens of the deep.

The Plain People of Ireland (very doubtfully): Is that the way? (Brightening up.) Did you ever read round the world in eighty days by Jools Vern?

Myself: I did faith.

The Plain People of Ireland (enthusiastically): It's very clever the way your man makes a bet to get round in eighty days and then he thinks he's lost it, he's done it in eighty-one, but then he comes along and discovers that he's gained a day on the journey because of the Gulf Steam, you know, and the curvature of the earth and all the rest of it. He wins out in the latter end. Why don't you sit down and write a book like that?

Myself: For a very simple reason. I haven't got a chair.

The Plain People of Ireland: A chair!

Myself: Yes, a chair. How could I sit down and write a book without having a chair to do the sitting on!

The Plain People of Ireland: What happened all the chairs you had?

Myself: Had to sell them, the only course compatible with honour. The rates, you know. Do you know the story about a certain college where they speak Latin and where the use of tobacco is strictly tabooed.

Taboo.

Yes. Well, this prefect comes along and sees a student with a lump in his cheek as if he was chewing a certain forbidden commodity. Quid est hoc? says the prefect. Hoc est quid, says the man, as quick to make a smart retort as that apocryphal character, the next. That joke dates from 1873. In what do I trust it keeps you?

Stitches.

HINDU DEMAND
INDIAN INDEPENDENCE

A resolution of the Working Committee of the Hindu Mahasabha, India's third biggest political party, demands an immediate declaration of the independent status of India, and immediate negotiation by the British Government with the principal political parties in India, to solve the present deadlock, says a New Delhi message. The resolution further demands the formation of an Indian National Government, which will "declare its determination to fight the common enemy." If the British Government does not respond to its demand, the Mahasabha, the Committee asserts, will be compelled to devise ways and means whereby Britain and her Allies "will realise that India as a self-respecting nation can no longer be suppressed."

A committee of seven is to organise a campaign to mobilise public opinion in support of the national demand, and, if possible, to negotiate with leaders of the principal parties and with representatives of the British Government.

The text of the resolution discloses that the demand for the transfer of power is made "subject to war-time adjustments necessary for the national defence of India," and that the Commander-in-Chief "would remain in operational control of the war." The Indian National Government would act in close collaboration with the United Nations for carrying out a common war policy, "determined by the Allied Councils, on which India would be represented by Indians chosen by the National Government." This Government would pursue a policy of industrialisation for effective national defence, and would raise a national army for the purpose. After the termination of the war, the resolution urges the creation of a constituent assembly to be set up by the National Government, to frame an Indian constitution based on democratic principles.—(Reuter.)

The Madras Government, in a Note yesterday, stated that, "with the exception of a portion of Trichinopoly, where a crowd was dispersed and a few persons were arrested, the situation in the Presidency is quiet."—(Reuter.)

One person was killed and two were seriously injured when a violent mob at Almora was fired on, says a Lucknow communique. In the Azamgarh district three were killed and ten wounded when an unlawful assembly was dispersed. Except for isolated areas north of the Ganges, the province has been quiet. In Saran troops had to fire on saboteurs in several places, killing one and wounding four.—(Reuter.)

BREAD TO COST MORE

The price of bread will undoubtedly increase in the near future, but as the price of flour is not known yet, even to bakers, it is not certain how much the increase will be. When an Irish Times reporter told a prominent member of the trade of the figure suggested recently in a contemporary—4d. on a 4lb. loaf—he later replied that such a big increase was unlikely. In his opinion it would be more like a penny.

The Department of Supplies, it is understood, are considering the matter.

Price of Wood Pool.—Lack of petrol is said to be causing a hitch in the delivery of timber supplies in Eire. In other cases it is stated that timber suppliers will not sell timber in Eire for 2d. per ton when they can obtain 4d a ton for it in Britain.

"Tell me, doctor . . .
why do some wounds heal quite quickly and others seem to take so long?"
Wounds heal naturally and quickly only if they are kept clean and free from the germs of septic infection. To keep wounds in a healthy condition for safe and rapid healing, surgeons everywhere use 'Dettol.' This ruthless destroyer of germs is entirely non-poisonous and non-corrosive.
This means that whilst 'Dettol' protects the body from the menace of septic complications, it leaves living tissue unharmed and so permits safe and rapid healing.

WOMEN STILL AREN'T MADE LIKE MEN
As women are different from men and particularly liable to different ailments, why is it so few realise they need a salts specially designed for women?
A woman needs firstly a salts that is gentle in its action, that will gently clear away the poisonous wastes which clog the blood-stream, make the complexion muddy, produce unwanted fat, and bring on Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica and other uric acid troubles.
Then she needs something to prevent the kidney and bladder troubles which cause the Backache, the swollen ankles and the constantly broken nights women suffer so often.
There's one salts which serves both these purposes because it is a combination of the finest mineral salts with pure oil of juniper, the best of all specifics for kidney and bladder troubles. It's called Juno-Junipah, and there isn't a woman in the country who would not be better and look prettier and slimmer if she took just a pinch of Juno-Junipah in warm water every morning. Her pains would disappear, her health and looks improve and her unwanted fat would simply melt away.
Better Health and Looks or NO PAY!
So certain is Juno-Junipah to make any woman feel and look better, that here is an offer! Get a 2/- packet of Juno-Junipah from any chemist to-day. Take it as directed, and if you aren't more than satisfied with what it has done, he will refund your money without question. Obtainable from all chemists.
